What if war was gone, would we all get along? What if we ended hate, could we all relate? What if strife would end, could we all be friends? What if men could lead, would more of us succeed? The answers start with you Am To make these things come true And if I asked you to What would you do? What if famine was exiled, would you feed a child? What if guns were banned, would you lend a helping hand? What if lies were exposed, would the truth take hold? What if we were color blind, would we be more kind? F The answers start with you To make these things come true And if I asked you to What would you do? LEAD BREAK (Verse and Chorus) What if enemies abate, would we cooperate? What if fear was put to rest, would we be our best? What if violence was no more, would we open up our doors? What if we acted more as one, how much better would we become? The answers start with you Em Am To make these things come true And if I asked you to What would you do?
